BRYAN BEGINS TO DRIVE DEMOCRATS ON WATER WAGON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Indianapolis, Nov. 18.—William Jennings Bryan today began his drive to make the Democratic party "dry." He laid the foundation for his political fight in Indiana with a conference of "dry" Democrats—the first conference with politicians since his announcement this week of his intention to wage a political fight to commit his party to national prohibition.

Arriving here with Mrs. Bryan, who is a delegate to the national Woman's Christian Temperance Union convention, his campaign took three courses. He endorsed the work of the temperance union, he planned to join suffragists in a mass meeting and he took up the political battle.

The Democrats with whom Mr. Bryan conferred included James McGill, J. Kirby Risk, George A. Briggs and Judge W. H. Eichorn—men who have opposed the leadership of the party in Indiana as represented by Senator Thomas Taggert and the present state organization.

GOOD SHOWING BY STATE AUTO ASS'N

Officers Report Increases in Funds and Membership—Speakers Discuss Uniform Traffic Regulations, State Constabulary and Toll Bridges.

Frank M. Baucus of Troy was re-elected president of the New York State Automobile Association at the annual convention held this week in Newburgh, which proved to be one of the most important, interesting and best attended conventions ever held by the association.

The association is now composed of 112 clubs, and the reports and statements showed a splendid financial condition with a large number of new clubs in process of formation.

The other officers elected were: 1st vice president, Herbert G. Andrews, Brooklyn; 2nd vice president, Peter G. TenEyck, Albany; 3rd vice president, A. H. Maloney, Camden; treasurer, Fay C. Parsons, Cortland; members of executive committee, A. J. Deer, Hornell; Fred D. Cribb, Canandaigua; directors-at-large, S. C. Tallman, Auburn; Homer A. Webb, Medina; the Hon. Edgar A. Newell, Ogdensburgh; secretary, Herbert W. Baker, Albany; general counsel, Melvin T. Bender, Albany. Chairman of boards will be appointed by President Baucus shortly.

Among many of the important matters discussed at the convention was the bill for uniform traffic regulations being prepared by a committee of the association in co-operation with the committee from the conference of mayors. W. P. Capes of the conference of mayors, addressed the convention and said that if some of the minor differences could be adjusted, there would be no question in his mind that New York state within a year, would adopt uniform traffic regulations. One of the points brought up was as to whether the moneys collected for violations of the law shall go into the local treasuries or into the state treasury. The automobilists fear that if the money goes to the local officials, that it will mean a revival of speed traps all over the state.

After an address by Mrs. Helen Hoy Greeley, legislative counsel of commission for a state police, the convention adopted a resolution endorsing the principle of a state constabulary. The particular interest in the establishment of a state police was to provide means for the enforcement of the motor vehicle, lights on all vehicles, and traffic laws, believing that with an efficient state police, reckless driving would be discouraged and eventually stopped.

Another matter of particular interest to motorists was the adoption of a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to take up the abolition of all toll bridges of New York state. The convention also adopted a resolution favoring an increased fee for commercial motor vehicles, also the limitation of weight for motor trucks.

There were also present L. B. Howland, president Canadian Automobile Association, Toronto; W. G. Robertson, secretary Ontario Motor League; A. L. Caron, president, and George A. McNamee, secretary, Montreal Automobile Club; Lionele Beaupre, secretary Quebec Automobile Club, and R. H. Parson, auto editor, Montreal Star.

The next convention will be held at Corning, early in the month of October.

John B. Riley Dead.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 18.—John B. Riley, former superintendent of prisons in New York state, died last night at his home in Plattsburg. He was 64 years of age and a native of Schuyler Falls. He was county judge of Clinton county when appointed superintendent of prisons by Governor Sulzer. He was superintendent of Indian affairs during President Cleveland's administration and later became consul general at Ottawa, Canada. He was a lawyer and a noted penologist.

EARLE HUMMEL TRULY A GENIUS

A violin recital which will become a part of musical history both at home and abroad in the years to come, provided little ten year old Earle Hummel is spared to fulfill the promise of today, was given Friday evening at the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street. A large and appreciative audience sat spell bound and awe struck in the presence of real genius of the rarest sort, when Earle Myer Hummel, violinist, assisted by Joseph Mathieu, tenor, and Charles Gilbert Spross, pianist, presented a program as remarkable as its performance.

Mr. Mathieu has sung in Kingston before, making many friends, who with those who had not previously had the privilege of hearing him, gave him a cordial welcome, and much appreciative applause for his fine rendition of the recitative, "Ah, Fill the Cup," and the air "Ah, Moon of my Delight" from "In a Persian Garden," by Lehman. Mr. Mathieu possesses an especially pleasing tenor voice and his interpretation of whatever music he sings is always sympathetic, appreciative and musicianly. By special request, Mr. Spross played artistically two pianoforte compositions, "Etude Melodic," by Raff, beautiful in its flowing melody; and a Scherzo Waltz by Moskowski, brilliant but not too brilliant for musical beauty. He was enthusiastically encored. Mr. Mathieu was heard again in two groups of charming songs, "As the Gloaming Shadows Creep," by Mac Dowell; "The Green Hills of Ireland," by Del-Riego; and "The Mammy Song," by Harriet Ware; and finally at the close of the program in three of Mr. Spross's most delightful compositions: "Ishtar," "My Marjorie" and "I Love and the World is Mine." In response to the continued applause, Mr. Mathieu sang as an encore a Scotch song, "My Ain Folk." The foregoing numbers would of themselves have made a most enjoyable evening's program of music, but of course the main feature of the evening, the heart of the recital, was the marvelous performance of little ten year old Earle Myer Hummel.

The program opened with the "Concerto in D Minor," known as the "Double Concerto," by Bach, for two violins and piano, and was played by Earle, his father, Ford Hommell, and Mr. Spross. To think of this wonderful composition, full of contrapuntal difficulties and intricacies, calling for perfect firmness of tone and precision of technique, one could but feel that it was utterly an impossibility, physically, technically and spiritually, for ninety-nine mature violinists out of a hundred, let alone for a child not yet 11 years of age. Even those who had heard Earle play before, rather trembled for the result, but needlessly so. Clean, clear, precise, firm and full the tones sang from his violin—not yet a full sized instrument—while the phrasing was excellent, and the very spirit of the great Bach filled the place as Earle, his father and Mr. Spross played the Vivace movement. One was almost stunned by the amazing technique of the youthful violinist, the work in the high position being especially masterful. And the boy found that Bach had more than a wonderful musical intellect, that he had a human heart, and it spoke with depth and beauty seldom heard from the bow of mature virtuosi, in the "Largo, mo non tanto" movement. The Allegro movement put all three musicians upon their mettle, but brilliant as it was, it was given a really remarkable fine rendition.

But it was in the Beethoven Concerto, the Allegro, ma non troppo, movement that the lad's full genius was shown. This marvelously beautiful composition was played by the youthful artist, with Mr. Spross at the piano playing the orchestral part of the Concerto. The entire work, taking twenty minutes for its full performance was played entirely from memory by Earle and still the amazing mental feat was outstripped by the musicianship displayed. With one's eyes closed it was unbelievable that the breadth and fulness of tone was not being produced by a mature violin artist. There was the rarest smoothness displayed in the bowing and fingering, coupled with a marvelous insight into the mind of the master whose work was being played. The tone production was absolutely perfect as to pitch, and the greatest technical difficulties seemed scarcely to exist, so easily was the Concerto played. When it came to the wondrous cadenza by Leonard, a cadenza to be attempted only by a virtuoso, Earle still further astounded his listeners. It was all but impossible to believe either ones eyes or ears, as one listened to those magnificent, broad, deep, pure tones, those flashes of brillaincy, and all from a three quarter sized violin, played by a child. As the last beautiful notes died away, the audience broke into tumultuous and prolonged applause, trying, if possible to give expression to the enthusiasm and wonder aroused by the performance of the boy with the serious face and perfectly natural boyish manner. Although be had just brought to a close a performance that might well have taxed a full grown man trained to long hours of endurance in playing, Earle happily and with a pleased smile skipped back to the stage, and accompanied by Mr Spross, played as an encore, the "Thais" by Massenet.

When asked as to his opinion of Earle's playing, Mr. Spross, said in an awed manner, realizing that he was in the presence of one possessed of the divine spark of genius, "Why just to be able to read the music at that age is almost unbelievable. And then to play with such a tone; such perfection of pitch; such understanding, such technique, and above all to have so memorized that Beethoven Concerto! It is all marvelous beyond the power of words to express." With all his masterly skill as a pianist and especially as an accompanist, Mr. Spross admitted cheerfully that Earle had given him an hour and a half of good stiff work during the rehearsal in the afternoon. As was said in the beginning of this article, this report will some day be a matter of musical history of interest to the world, because of the artist of the future, and what has been said contains no word of over fulsome praise, nor prejudice of local pride. Providence permitting—and this is said most seriously—some day Kingston will win yet a new laurel leaf in its wreath in that it was the birthplace and home of Earle Myer Hummel, violinist. And so seriously, so honestly and humbly, so appreciatively keen to such limitations as he possesses, is Earle, that one need not fear that these words of commendation will be his undoing by making him vainglorious. Earle has the right humility of true greatness.

CLINTON AVENUE M. E. CHURCH REBUILT.

Beginning Sunday special services will be held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church for a week in celebration of the rebuilding of the church. These services are known as "McBride Memorial Reopening," the church improvements being a memorial to the late Bernard McBride.

MAIL CLERK IS INDICTED.

U. S. District Attorney Frank Moore Roosa Prosecuting Accused.

United States Commissioner Edward J. Collins held a special hearing Thursday in Newburgh to examine the charge of tampering with United States mail, made against Raymond J. Benrose, of Goshen, arrested by United States postal inspectors working out of Kingston. Benrose, who was out on bail, was accompanied by his mother, and by his attorney, Ivan A. Gardner, who was for years a classmate of the prisoner in the Goshen High School. The government was represented by Assistant District Attorney Frank Moore Roosa, who brought word that an indictment had been found against the prisoner by the United States Grand Jury. This automatically ended the hearing, as the only action that could be taken by U. S. Commissioner Collins would be to hold for that action. The bail was continued by the mother of the prisoner. Prosecutor Roosa is well known in Kingston, being a brother of J. Hardenburgh Roosa of Fair street.

Bazaar and Entertainment.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Spring Street German Lutheran Church is preparing for their annual bazaar and entertainment to be given at the school hall of the church on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, December 13 and 14. There will be a large display of useful and fancy articles and refreshments will be served. Keep it in mind.

New B. W. S. Office.

The foundation for the new office building of the New York Board of Water Supply at Grand Gorge has been laid and the building will be ready for occupancy next May. The present offices at Ashokan will be abandoned and the Schoharie project directed from the Grand Gorge headquarters.

Skunk Skins Sell at $5.

Webster Phillips, a boy trapper of High Falls, was in Kingston Friday and reported a fairly successful season. Thus far he has trapped five skunks, which he sold for $5 each. Muskrats, whose pelts bring 80 cents and mink at $3.50 up, also add to the revenue of trappers.

Lexington Woman Suicide.

Mrs. Emerson Van Valkenburgh, aged about 65 years, a resident of Spruceton, in the town of Lexington, committed suicide Wednesday afternoon by shooting herself with a rifle at the home of Mrs. Henry Van Valkenburgh, where she had been visiting.

SILLER HAD A BOB VEAL CALF

Dr. Harold Clarke Found Calf in Siller's Slaughter House—Siller Arrested and After Trial Fined $5.

Jacob Siller, who has a slaughter house on Ann street, was arrested on Friday by Policeman P. J. White on a warrant sworn out by Dr. Harold Clarke, sanitary inspector of the board of health, on a charge of having a bob veal calf in his possession. This is not the first time that Siller had been in trouble.

From the story as brought out this morning when Mr. Siller was arraigned before Recorder Lang it was learned that Dr. Clarke had visited the slaughter house and found the butchered calf and seized it. Siller claimed he had butchered the calf for the hide and did not expect to sell it for bob veal. He claimed the hide was worth $1.50 to $2 and that he had paid 75 cents for the calf.

Dr. Clarke said that the calf was killed kosher style.

Recorder Lang informed Siller that he found it hard to believe his story that the calf had been killed for the hide alone, and his opinion was that Siller was going to take a chance, but got caught. The fact that the calf was killed by a kosher butcher led the court to believe that it was intended to be offered for sale. He fined Siller $5, which was paid.

The health authorities say that a number of bob veal calves are sold, which is a direct violation of the state law as well as the city ordinance. Efforts will be made to strictly enforce the law.

MR. GALLAGHER PROMOTED.

Succeeded as Manager of Texas Company by Mark R. Lockwood.

F. W. Gallagher, who has been agent of the Texas Company's local branch on Deyo street since the station opened two years ago, has been promoted and will have carge of the territory embraced by Greene, Ulster, Delaware, Sullivan and Rockland counties, handling the company's products. He has been succeeded as agent at the local branch by Mark R. Lockwood who for a number of years has been with the New York Central Railroad. Both Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Lockwood have a host of friends who wish them success.

Crawford Indicted.

Samuel Oakley Crawford, alias Arthur Worthington, unfrocked Presbyterian pastor, has been indicted by a Dutchess county grand jury for obtaining $259 on false pretense from a resident of that county. A similar indictment was recently returned in Orange county but no trace has yet been secured of Crawford.

Fire Truck Smashed.

The Phoenix motor fire apparatus in use in Poughkeepsie was badly smashed Thursday afternoon when it crashed into a building, the driver turning out to avoid running into the police patrol. The congestion was blamed on a motorman who failed to stop his car when the alarm was sounded.

Shot Himself.

A man, registered as Edward A. Bunker of New York city, shot himself with a revolver in a Newburgh hotel Friday morning. Efforts are being made to estabish his identity through fraternal cards found in his clothing.

Chimney Fire on Newkirk Ave.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Friday evening a chimney fire in the residence of William Marks on Newkirk avenue caused a still alarm to be sent in to the fire department to which the auto truck responded.

CAPTAIN GURNEY WAS KNOWN HERE

Nephew of South Rondout Man Was in Charge of Tug Scott When Rammed and Sunk by the Deutschland.

Captain John Gurney of the tug boat T. A. Scott, Jr., who was drowned when the tug was rammed and sunk by the submarine Deutschland, was known in this vicinity, and was a nephew of Captain John Gurney of South Rondout. As told in Friday's dispatches in The Freeman, the tug Scott, in charge of Captain Gurney, was one of the tugs convoying the submarine liner Deutschland when she started her homeward dash on Friday morning. A motorboat approaching close to the submarine caused the tug Scott to swing across the bow of the submarine to ward off the motorboat, and resulted in the tug being rammed and sunk with a loss of five lives.

SUIT AGAINST THE DEUTSCHLAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New London, Ct., Nov. 18.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland was today libelled in a suit for $12,000 damages brought by the T. A. Scott Company, owners of the tug T. A. Scott, Jr., which was sunk by the submarine yesterday with the loss of five lives.

Service was made by Deputy U. S. Marshal Timothy Hawley of Hartford on the owners of the Deutschland, the Eastern Forwarding Company, and a keeper was put in charge of the submarine pending the filing of bonds which are expected to be given by the owners of the Deutschland.

The suit is brought by Edward E. Blodgett of Boston and Samuel Park of New York, proctors for the Scott Company. The papers state that the tug was of 36 gross tons and her value is given at $12,000.

In the papers the general claim of carelessness and violation of the rules of navigation is claimed against the Deutschland. The papers recite that the night was clear, the wind moderate and the sea choppy. The Deutschland was holding a parallel course on the port side of the tug Scott. The Deutschland, it is charged, suddenly sheered to starboard without warning and hit the tug, which filled almost instantly and sank with her crew on board.

The claim is made that the Deutschland did not have a proper lookout on deck, that there was not a competent deck officer in charge and that the under-sea vessel did not have a competent man at the wheel. It is also charged that the Deutschland suddenly changed her course and was at fault in not keeping out of the way of the tug.

The further charge is made that the Deutschland did not have proper lights and that when the collision was imminent she did not reverse her engines in accordance with the rules

The Scott Company furnished a bond of $250 to cover the costs of the suit which is returnable to the United States District Court in New Haven.

KINGSTON OPERA HOUSE TO BE GREATLY ENLARGED

Plans to Convert it Into a Modern Theater With Adequate Stage and Seating Capacity of 1,600—Hathaway Management to Continue.

As a climax to all the talk about building new theatres in Kingston, where a new theatre is needed more than in any other city in New York state, it has been definitely determined that remodeling of the present Kingston Opera House will convert it into one of the most up-to-date and modern theatres to be found, and plans for such conversion have been prepared by Architect Gerard W. Betz which it is expected will materialize into contracts as soon as O. S. Hathaway, the present manager and proprietor of the opera house, returns from California in fifteen days.

Everybody has all along suspected that the Kingston opera house could be converted into a first class theater capable of furnishing adequate accommodations for Kingston theater goers, and for the best and largest companies that visit any city outside of New York. The change will be effected in the first place by utilizing the entire lot on which the present opera house stands, and the theater when remodelled will have a seating capacity of 1,600 people. The building will be absolutely fireproof and the present tiresome stairways will be eliminated. The stage will occupy that part of the site now occupied by a stage but, of course, it will be much larger than the present stage. The stage entrance will be on the John street side of the building, as at present, and there will be ample accommodations for dressing rooms, etc., in fact the stage accommodations will be thoroughly modern, which will insure bigger and better attractions which now play only in the bigger cities where accommodations are in keeping with the importance and size of the production.

Under the proprietorship of O. S Hathaway and the resident managership of George C. Gildersleeve the Kingston Opera House has furnished Ulster county theatre-goers with a high class of attractions continuously and the popularity of the theare has been attested by the large crowds which throng the theatre not only at moving picture performances but at all the big productions as well. Mr. Hathaway is thoroughly up-to-date in his methods and the chain of theatres he now operates enables him to bring a much better class of productions here than ever came to Kingston before. Besides the Kingston Opera House and the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, which is under his management, he operates two large theatres in Binghamton, two in Middletown, and one each at Amsterdam and Oneonta.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

Poughkeepsie has set the week of January 15-20, 1917, for its third annual automobile show.

That work on the Storm King highway was to be resumed within the next 10 days was the news which was brough to Newburgh by H. Elting Breed of Cornwall, Second Deputy Commissioner of Highways, one of the speakers at the dinner given the New York State Automobile Association at The Palatine. The announcement was received with much enthusiasm.

Secretary of State Frank M. Hugo, in his address referred to the problem of eliminating the glaring headlight which, he said, causes 50 per cent of the accidents in which motor vehicles figure at night. Mr. Hugo unreservedly recommended to automobilists the use of a crytallized headlight invented by his fellow-townsman, Frank M. Williams of Watertown, and manufactured by the No-Glar-On Company of that city. The inventor, who is a namesake but no relation of State Engineer Frank M. Williams of Goshen, was in Newburgh and gave a demonstration.

Secretary Hugo was particularly severe in condemning a man who drives a motor car while intoxicated, and who crushes out a human life without knowing anything about it. "I consider this worse than to go out into the highway with a loaded shotgun," he said. "The license of such a man ought to be immediately revoked. Yet, even under these circumstances, the secretary of state is now absolutely powerless. Such tragedies occur almost every day, and at least every week. A man guilty in this way ought to be liable to a jail sentence."

Tile Pipe Here.

Two weeks ago Daniel Halloran was awarded the contract to supply the board of public works with the tile pipe to be used in the construction of the Cornell street sewer. The pipe in three carloads has arrived and been unloaded.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 18.—There has never been a time in the history of the stock exchange when a group of stocks were traded in with such an excited display of strength as was shown in the copper shares at the opening today. Huge crowds were assembled in several of these issues and in the first few minutes sensational advances were recorded. Granby opened with sales of 100 shares at 115 and within an instant moved up a point at a time to 120, a net advance of 12¼ points. Chile Copper, which closed yesterday at 32⅞, opened with sales of 12,000 shares at from 33½ to 38 in different parts of the crowd, followed by a further advance to 39 and from that level there was a quick drop to 36¼. Kennicott opened with sales of 15,000 shares, from 62 to 63½, a gain of 2⅝ points. Utah Copper rose three points to 125 and Anaconda moved up 1⅝ points to 104⅝, all the above issues scoring new high records. Other stocks showed irregular changes but the majority made substantial gains. U. S. Steel Common was traded in on a large scale, advancing 1⅛ to 127¼, also a new high mark. Republic Iron and Steel advanced 1½ to 91⅛, Colorado Fuel and Iron a point to 60, and American Can a point to 66⅝. Willys-Overland was the strongest of the of the motor group, advancing to 39. Fluctuations in the railway issues were narrow and without importance.

The final tone was strong. Just before the close there was another spurt in Utah Copper, which carried the price of tat stock up to 130, again lifting its high record, and showing a gain of 8 points for the day. Changes in other issues were mixed with Central Leather in supply at concessions. Steel Common was again in demand, moving up to 126, after reacting from its high price in the morning. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

TO RAISE $35,000 FOR THE SANITARIUM

On November 28 the whirlwind campaign will be started in this city to raise $35,000 for the purpose of building a suitable addition to the Benedictine Sanitarium.

For some time the lack of rooms has seriously interfered with the comfort of the patients and the growing needs of the institution now demand an immediate enlargement of the building.

A large number of the best citizens of this city have already signified their intention to assist the project and on Tuesday evening next a meeting of the citizens campaign committee will be held at the K. of C. rooms, 391 Broadway, at 8 o'clock, to effect a permanent organization.

The campaign was arranged for by the sisters in charge of the sanitarium. A systematic appeal will be made to the citizens of Kingston and vicinity for the purpose of raising the desired amount of money. An organization of about 100 people divided into teams, will carry on the active campaign calling on such people as are selected and card indexed at the headquarters. This whole movement is similar to campaigns which have been run in nearly every community for public institutions. It is conceded in these modern days that the only way to successfully raise large sums of money is to make the project strictly a community affair offering an opportunity for all the people to demonstrate their interest in a worthy public charity.

The history of fund raising campaigns of this kind in nearly every town in the country shows that by no other method is it possible to raise moderately large sums with so little effort on the part of the local people as it is by conducting whirlwind campaigns along lines demonstrated to be effectual. The time for conducting this work here seems particularly favorable as business conditions are good and a Thanksgiving season of the year is the time when people generally feel a sense of gratitude toward public institutions and charity. Such a sense of gratitude can now be expressed in terms of cash, which is really the ultimate measure of real interest in charitable public institutions.

The progress of the campaign will no doubt be watched with much interest on the part of the community as every one is interested in its success.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1784.—A Neat Blouse Dress for Mother's Girl.

Serge, repp, drill, linen or poplin could be used for the skirt, and crepe, batiste or lawn for the blouse. The entire dress may be of one material. The skirt is buttoned to the blouse at the belt. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3¼ yards of 44 inch material for a 10 year size. Plaid gingham, in brown and blue tones, would be nice for this skirt, with white linen for the blouse, and collar and cuffs of the plaid. Khaki cloth is also good for the skirt, and tub silk or voile for the blouse.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

The KITCHEN CABINET

There is no action so slight nor so mean, but it may be done to a great purpose, and ennobled thereby: nor is any purpose so great but that slight acts may help it.—Ruskin.

GOOD EATING.

A quick and delicious salad dressing is made as follows: Rub to a paste the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs and two tablespoonfuls of olive oil; add salt, paprika and white pepper to taste, then add slowly two tablespoonfuls of good vinegar; add gradually half a cupful of cream, and when well mixed beat it two minutes with an egg beater; set on the ice until thoroughly chilled; this is particularly good for potato or any vegetable salad.

Tongue is recommended to be used in place of suet in mince pies; then they may be served cold and are equally as good as hot.

French fried potatoes, if rolled in cornmeal before frying will be found much improved.

When boiling ham add a few cloves and whatever canned fruit juice is at hand, such as peach, pear, quince, apricot or the juice from pickled peaches or pears.

Patty shells seasoned with grated cheese make a delicious change from the plain, everyday kind.

New York Sandwich.—With three tablespoonfuls of finely minced onion blend two tablespoonfuls of finely minced onion. Add one well-beaten egg, and when well mixed, drop by spoonfuls into hot drippings; pat in shape, and when delicately brown on one side, turn and saute on the other, then place between slices of bread, buttered and cut in sandwich form. Serve on lettuce.

Pecan Pralines.—Boil together two cupfuls of brown sugar, a quarter of a cupful of boiling water, until thick, then add four tablespoonfuls of butter and cook five minutes; remove from the stove, add a cupful of pecans and beat for one minute, or until thick enough to drop by spoonfuls on a buttered pan.

Apple Pudding.—Put layers of buttered toast in a baking dish, cover with chopped apple, a little sugar and cinnamon, then another layer of toast, buttered. Pour over a custard, using a pint of milk and two eggs, a little salt and sugar. Bake until the custard is set.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

A Thanksgiving Day proclamation, issued by President Wilson on Friday, charges the people of the United States with responsibility to contribute largely toward relief in Europe "out of our abundant means."

The proclamation said America should be doubly thankful because of "the blessings of peace and unbroken prosperity."

The proclamation follows:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A Proclamation.

"It has long been the custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year that has elapsed since we last observed our day of thanksgiving has been rich in blessings to us as a people, but the whole face of the world has been darkened by war. In the midst of our peace and happiness, our thoughts dwell with painful disquiet upon the struggles and sufferings of the nations at war and of the peoples upon whom war has brought disaster without choice or possibility of escape on their part. We cannot think of our own happiness without thinking also of their pitiful distress.

"Now therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson president of the United States of America do appoint Thursday, the thirtieth of November, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and urge and advise the people to resort to their several places of worship on that day to render thanks to Almighty God for the blessings of peace and unbroken prosperity which He has bestowed upon our beloved country in such unstinted measure. And I also urge and suggest our duty in this our day of peace and abundance, to think in deep sympathy of the stricken peoples of the world upon whom the curse and terror of war has so pitilessly fallen, and to contribute out of our abundant means to the relief of their sufferings. Our people could in no better way show their real attitude toward the present struggle of the nations than by contributing out of their abundance to the relief of the suffering which war has brought in its train.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, this seventeenth day of November, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixteen, and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Forty First.

"WOODROW WILSON.

"By the President, Robert Lansing, Secretary of State."

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

In the surrogate's court, Surrogate Gill has granted letters of administration on the estate of Joseph Sharp of the town of Wawarsing to his sister, Mary Dickinson. The value of the estate is $345 personal property. Raymond G. Cox appeared for the administratrix.

The contest over the will of Albert Cartright of Saugerties has been adjourned to Thursday, November 23.

To Pour Concrete Monday.

Contingent upon a continuance of good weather, Contractor Philip Kramer expects to begin placing concrete Monday morning at the city end of Hurley avenue. The contractor has a conditional permit from the highway department for doing the work at this time and if the temperature does not go too low some material progress on the job may be noted before the New Year.

Bovine Tuberculosis Bulletin.

Announcement is made by Commissioner of Agriculture Charles S. Wilson of the issuance of a bulletin on bovine tuberculosis. In view of the increased interest in dairying, it is expected that the treatise on this disease will be widely read and discussed. It will be sent to any address on application to the State Department of Agriculture, Albany, N. Y.

Motorcycle at Auction.

A 1915 Indian motorcycle in good condition was sold at public auction at the court house this morning by Sheriff Shultis to W. A. Gindele of Poughkeepsie for $50. The purchaser was holder of a chattel mortgage executed to him by Edward Kelly of this city from whom the motorcycle was seized.

Curious hat shapes have appeared recently. The designer is ever anxious to obtain something different and new. Apparently in the case of the illustration, she has succeeded and the result is that one finds a hat of pressed beaver with one half of the brim cut and bent up to meet the crown at a severe angle. A spray of cogne feather is placed flat on the brim.

BILLY EVANS' BASEBALL PROBLEMS

Written Especially for This Paper by the Famous American League Umpire.

Freak plays are much more frequent in the minors than in the big show, but a play came up in the American league that is probably without a parallel in baseball. It has been put up to any number of umpires, players, and managers, and all contend they never heard of a simular happening on a ball field.

Washington and Philadelphia were the opposing teams. The Athletics got away to a good start, and when the ninth inning rolled around had piled up a big lead. With two down in the last half of the ninth, Eddie Ainsmith, the crack Washington catcher, hit for a single. With a lead of seven or eight runs, none of the Athletic paid any attention to Ainsmith, who stole second on the first ball pitched and third on the second ball delivered by Chief Bender. Then some fan in the third base bleaches yelled: "Finish up the job, Eddie, by stealing home!" That is just what Ainsmith essayed to do, and incidentally stirred up one of the most peculiar arguments in baseball history.

As Bender started to wind up, Ainsmith started for home. Bender, with a smile, decided he would permit Ainsmith to go through with his intended theft. In order to make sure that the Washington catcher would reach the plate safely, Bender kept on winding up his right arm until Ainsmith had slid over the plate in safety. Just about the time Bender had finally delivered the ball to the batter, Ainsmith had regained his feet and was busy dusting off his uniform. As luck would have it, the batter hit the ball to left field, Oldring making the catch that retired the side and ended the game. The question naturally arose as to whether or not the run counted. What would you have done had you been the umpire?

Solution of Problem.

The run does not count. The play, of course, is based on rule 50, which relates to the scoring of runs. Part of this rule states that a run shall not be scored if, after touching the first three bases, the runner comes home from third on a play in which the third man is forced out, or is put out before reaching first.

The umpires contend that the start of the play was when Bender began his wind-up, and that the completion of the play was the hitting of the fly ball to left field, the batter naturally being out before he reached first. Hence, the run should not count, even though Ainsmith had scored before the ball was really started on its way to the plate. That really has nothing to do with the situation, the start of the wind-up being the beginning of the play. It is a question that will cause many an argument.

TENNEY RETIRES FROM GAME

Former New York Player Sends in Resignation as Manager of International League Team.

Fred Tenney will not manage the Newark International league team next season, according to an announcement made by President James Price.

Price said that no effort has been made to appoint a successor to Tenney.

Fred Tenney.

Tenney notified Price that he wished to retire from the game and would not consider leading the Newark team next season. Tenney's stock in the club "has been taken care of," according to Price's statement.

KID WILLIAMS WILL RETIRE

King of Bantamweights Makes Announcement He Will Quit Ring Before December 5, 1917.

Kid Williams, king of the bantamweights, is out with the announcement that he will quit the ring before another year has passed. Williams will be twenty four years old on December 5, 1917, and declares that before that date he will leave the boxing game and never attempt a comeback. It is his purpose to retire undefeated, but he will not dodge a match in the meantime with any bantamweight in the game.

PLAN NEW BASEBALL LEAGUE

Proposed Circuit Is Scheduled to Include Wichita and Topeka From Western Association.

Plans for a new baseball circuit in Kansas and Oklahoma have been started. The proposed circuit is scheduled to include Oklahoma City, Wichita, Topeka, Tulsa, Joplin, Muskogee, Fort Smith and Springfield. Since both Wichita and Topeka had a disastrous season last year in the Western league it has been suggested that this league be made Class B. The total population of its towns would be 430,000.

SWIMS ACROSS TORONTO BAY

Sixteen-Year-Old Miss Achieves Quite Unusual Distinction in Canadian Waters.

Canada, too, has expert women swimmers. Recently Miss Erith Hartley, a sixteen-year-old member of an association, achieved the difficult task of swimming across Toronto bay. She was accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Wilson, the champion woman swimmer of Toronto, who has negotiated the difficult trip a number of times.

GOING INTO ACTION.

This photograph was taken as one of the big field pieces of the British army was being brought, despite many obstacles, met by the heavy mud, into one of the big battles of recent weeks on the front north of the Somme. It is one of many hundreds of guns of similar design being used by the British in the desperate and bloody fighting in this particular war theater.

Carpets of the Ancients.

References to carpets are found among the earliest Egyptian and Assyrian writers. In Egypt, for example, floor and seat coverings were used in temples for religious ceremonies, while about 1700 B. C. they garnished the interiors of the royal palaces.

For 400 years following the dynasty of the pharaohs carpet weaving was apparently confined to the Egyptians and Assyrians, an extant example of a floor cover of 705 B. C. taken from the palace at Nineveh, bearing a design of wooden lotus flowers and buds.

Arrian tells us that the tomb of Cyrus the Persian was covered with a pall of purple Babylonian tapestry, while Callixenus, the best reporter of his time, writing the story of the banquet given by one of the Ptolemies, pictures "purple carpets of finest wool with the pattern on both sides and handsomely embroidered rugs very beautifully decorated with figures," a description of which might well apply to the floor or chair coverings in any mansion of today.—New York World.

Just Like a Man.

She hurried down the stairs to join her husband, who was waiting to go out with her to the party.

"Oh, Jack," she cried, "wait a moment!"

"I never saw anything like it!" exclaimed Jack impatiently. "You always forget something. You girls are enough to drive any patient man from life."

"But, Jack, dear!"

"Oh, go upstairs and get what you want and don't for goodness sake keep me waiting here any longer!"

"But I haven't forgotten anything, dear; it's you!"—

"Good gracious! What next, I wonder? I've been dressed ready and waiting for you this last half hour!"

"Indeed!" she said, frigidly. "Then why is it you have no necktie on?"

"Goodness!" he ejaculated. "Why couldn't you tell me that before, instead of staring at me and saying nothing?"—Exchange.

Why Not Be Sensible?

To the cannibal of earth who are looking for a new and lasting sensation we would offer the query, Why not be sensible?

If you have never tried looking at things in a sensible way you cannot imagine what supreme delights there are in an excursion into this little frequented domain of human activity. There are drawbacks, to be sure. But the drawbacks are greatly outweighed by the advantages. We have known people who, after leading unsensible lives from early childhood, have taken up the sensible life and have never led any other life from that time on. That, however, is going to extremes and is

The dog is not aware of the advantage of the forward position of its eyes; it is but a single eye that the dog centers upon the object of interest. Man, on the other hand, possessing a well-developed faculty of using both eyes upon the same object with successful results, probably leads the entire procession in the matter of binocular vision.

Killed Her Engine.

A three-year-old Columbus girl, who had been motoring frequently last summer with her father and mother, seems to have absorbed some of the talk she overheard. She was dragging a little chair across the floor at home, when it struck an obstruction, and her progress across the room was stopped. "Whoa," she exclaimed. How the high cost of bread materials is affecting bakers in other cities is shown by the statements of Brooklyn bakers, seventy-seven of whom have failed within the last three weeks. Since 1914 flour has gone from $4.25 to $10.50 a barrel; lard from 7 cents to 15 cents a pound; sugar from 3½ cents to 7½ cents a pound, wrapping paper has gone up 300 per cent, with labor and overhead expenses climbing 50 per cent. These are the figures submitted by the bakers, who assert that prices will go higher before spring and continue at the high point until the close of the European war. Their remedy is to sell a 27-ounce loaf for 15 cents rather than an 18-ounce loaf for ten cents. Whatever the complaint of consumers, it is difficult to blame the bakers with any degree of justice. Here in Kingston the long-expected seven-cent loaf has made its advent and will, doubtless, be welcome to the wise housekeepers who have been alive to the fact that the present five-cent loaf is now averaging anywhere from seven to ten ounces, depending upon the length of time it has been out of the oven. The country is in the grip of conditions due to heavy buying on the part of European belligerents and partially to speculative activity in foodstuffs. Unless this country declares an embargo on all such foods for export, our citizens must bear a heavy share of the tremendous burden that war is imposing upon the entire world.

Only recently several local complaints were aired upon the annoyances to which telephone subscribers on party lines are subject when one of their number fails to pay his rental. The service is, of course, cut off on the delinquent subscriber but unfortunately all of the other parties on the line are obliged to repeat their respective numbers to the central operator before being given the connection desired. This is a petty annoyance and cannot be especially efficient, inasmuch as there is nothing to prevent the offending subscriber from obtaining service by the simple expedient of giving a different letter with his number when the latter is requested. A far better practice is that made public in the Telephone Review, which mentions the system of discounts allowed on the regular monthly payments in the Illinois telephone exchanges the same as is done with gas bills generally through this state. The Illinois Public Utilities Commission has approved this practice, stating that it tends to diminish collection expense and loss from unpaid rentals, in addition to lightening the burden upon subscribers who meet their bills promptly. With all this talk of telephone service efficiency, why is not some similar sane rule put in effect by the telephone corporations in New York State?

The open season for deer hunting in New York State brought with it about the average number of fatalities, six being the total down to date. Five of these hunters were killed by mistake for deer. The usual expressions deploring the occurrence of such accidents will be made, orally and editorially, and then all will be forgotten until another fall rolls 'round and the sad business is taken up anew. It is high time that an effective remedy was devised to lessen this form of manslaughter. To the experienced hunter, the practice of shooting at something moving that cannot be clearly discerned is incomprehensible and indefensible as well. Yet the amateur and the occasional hunter possessed of an excitable temperament continue their homicidal careers without let or hindrance. The compensation law has not been extended to guides and no labor inspector looks after their safety, now at the mercy of the hair-trigger subject to a hare-brained hunter. Some of these killings are suggestive of such wanton carelessness as to warrant a trial for manslaughter. In any event, the guilty party should never be permitted to hunt again. An amendment to the law providing for hunters' licenses could be made to cover this latter point. As a corrective influence toward eliminating the careless hunter from the woods some such legislation is essential if hunting is to continue as a permanent sport in the Empire State.

The most astounding event of the great war is the restoration of slavery as an institution. This is an exact description of the wholesale deportation of Belgians to Germany to perform forced labor there under the supervision of taskmasters. Whether whips will be used on the backs of the captives we know not, but the threat is there. Even our own feeble Government, which has remained "neutral" during the series of German atrocities in Belgium, has been moved by this last development to make a half-hearted protest, which has been politely "acknowledged" by the German Government. Of course, the principal thing is that we be "kept out of war," and we should say nothing unkind or provocative even if millions of human beings are reduced to the status of cattle.

ULSTER CO. SOCIETY IN NEW YORK CITY

Anyone Who Lived For Five Years in Ulster May Become a Member —Names of Eligibles Are Wanted.

For the purpose of organizing an Ulster County Society in the city of New York a large and enthusiastic number of former residents representing all parts of the city of Kingston and the county gathered in the office of Former Assistant District Attorney J. Ward Follette in the Woolworth Building on Thursday evening.

A letter was read from the Hon. Edmund W. Wakelee, at one time acting governor of New Jersey, regretting his inability to be present as he delivered an address in Newark on that evening. Mr. Wakelee said he "was very glad to be connected with any organization that may be formed and assist in any way possible to make it a success. I will appreciate it very much if you will let me know what is done."

A temporary organization was effected by electing J. Ward Follette chairman and Joseph Drake secretary.

It was decided that the name of the organization should be "The Ulster County Society in the City of New York."

Committees on by-laws, nominating officers and membership were appointed, to report at the next meeting to be held in Mr. Follette's office on December 7.

Discussion as to qualifications for membership resulted in suggestions to the by-laws committee that a person born in Ulster county or residing there for five years may become eligible for membership.

It is the aim of the society to get in touch with all former residents of the county now residing in New York and to this end the organization would appreciate it very much if residents of Kingston and Ulster county, knowing of persons from their sections now living in New York to send the names and addresses to the secretary, Joseph Drake, 116 Nassau street, in order that a full list may be compiled.

Those present at the meeting on Thursday evening submitted the names of over 400 former Ulster countyites and felt that there were at least a thousand in New York who were eligible to membership.

Bill on the War Path.

"Bad Bill" Monroe, who at one time was the terror of Orange and Ulster counties, is at his old work. He has been living at Highland Mills. Workmen have been putting down a concrete sidewalk in front of his home. "Bill" wanted no improvements and he deliberately walked through the wet concrete to break up the surface. Harry Adams, foreman on the job, tackled the fellow, a scuffle ensued and "Bill" tried to take a piece out of the arm of Adams with his teeth. Adams caused the arrest of Monroe. He was found guilty and sentence suspended during his good behavior. He promised to leave the town at once, taking his family with him, which he did.

World's Tallest Women.

After taking measurements of the height of women in France, England and America, a doctor announces that the English woman is the tallest and the American comes next. The average height of the French woman is five feet one inch. The American woman is nearly two inches taller, and the women of Great Britain one-half inch taller than the latter. American women, however, weigh slightly more than either of the others, their average weight being about 117 pounds.

"What is this I hear about the board of health going to pass an ordinance compelling all milk to be paralyzed before it is sold?" asked the friend of the street corner politician.

"Paralyzed milk is good," returned the politician smiling, "but what you meant to say was pasteurized milk and not paralyzed milk."

"Well, it all means the same thing, the germs are supposed to be killed," replied the friend.

"Anyway," continued the politician, "you are crediting the health board with something it has not done, and that I don't believe it is going to do," said the politician.

"What is there about it then?" asked the friend.

"From what I learn there are some interested parties who would like to have the health board pass such an ordinance," said the politician, "but I hardly think they will do so."

"Why?" queried the friend.

"Because," explained the politician, it would work an uncalled for hardship on the small dealer, who has no facilities for pasteurizing his milk, and in the next place there is not as yet a large part of the purchasing public asking that all milk be pasteurized, and who still want the old fashioned kind."

"Do you think there will ever be such a law passed?" asked the friend.

"That is anudder story," replied the politician with a grin.

"This Kingston Taxpayers' Association kinder puts me in mind of the Municipal League," said the friend following a pause.

"How is that?" asked the politician.

"Why, it seems that it is being organized to better local conditions and lower the tax rate," replied the friend.

"And that reminds me that the Municipal League dropped out of sight some time ago," said the politician.

"That's so," said the friend, "and what became of it?"

"Likely it and the Kingston Playground Association are taking a well earned rest," replied the politician.

"H'm," said the friend doubtfully.

"Probably both have died a natural death," said the politician.

Candidate for Meanest Man Contest—She—"Look where I burned myself on the arm yesterday, and here on the other arm I burned myself today."

She—"What?"

He—"You know clothing costs money."

"What I can't understand," said the friend to the street corner politician, "is why the Republicans of Ulster county don't hold a parade."

"That is easily explained," replied the politician. "All the Republican candidates in Ulster county were elected."

"I know that, but what has that to do with it?" persisted the friend.

"Nothing in particular, only it seems to be an unwritten law in Ulster county for only defeated candidates to parade and be 'cheered to the echo' as the official Democratic organ states," said the politician grinning.

"I see by the papers that a man was sent to jail the other day by Recorder Lang and the man preferred the jail to the alms house," said the friend.

"I read that too," replied the politician.

"How do you account for it?" queried the friend.

"I don't attempt to," replied the politician, "but my idea is that some men have so much pride that they would rather have it said they were in jail than in the poor house."

"That sounds reasonable," admitted the friend.

"It would sound better though," replied the politician, "if men would accumulate a little ambition and less of that sort of pride so that they would not have to go to either place."

"You are right there," responded the friend.

"But then," continued the politician, "if that was so it would throw all the jailers and alms house keepers out of a job, and they have to live too."

Why Rubber Tires Grow Hot.

When an automobile is running at high speed the rubber tires are rapidly warmed, and the heat sometimes becomes very great, with resultant injury to the rubber. The cause of this accumulation of heat in the tire is ascribed to the kneading of the rubber, which generates heat faster than it can be radiated away. For this reason manufacturers have found it to be an advantage to have metal parts in the tread, such as the ends of rivets, in contact with the tire, because the metal, being a good radiator, helps to carry off the heat to the outer air.

Evolution of Clothes.

Centuries ago, as Sir Walter Scott says in "Ivanhoe," men wore one thickness of clothes, whether of wool, leather or velvet. The shirt was invented, but for a long time was worn only by the nobility and gentry. Then followed the waistcoat, breeches and later on trousers. The overcoat, which succeeded the medieval cloak, was rare until the seventeenth century.

Very Exclusive.

The English class was studying Scott, and the teacher asked some one to explain the meaning of the line, "He is come of high degree." One boy arose and explained readily, "It means his parents were both gentlemen."—Christian Herald.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

What steps are necessary in vulcanizing casings? Must the casing always be removed from the wheel?

For vulcanizing casing cuts it is not always necessary to remove the tire from the wheel. Apply from one to three layers of cement, allowing each to dry. Fill the hole not quite level with the surface with scraps of Para rubber. The best results are obtained when casing repairs are slightly concave. If filled too full the rubber will expand and flow over on to the unprepared surface in a thin film that will soon peel up and cause trouble. Moreover, the protruding plug will receive more than its share of hammering and will undoubtedly split open. Be sure when mending a sand pocket to stop the hole where the dirt entered, as it may be a foot away from the sand pocket.

After preparing the tube or casing and while waiting for it to dry screw the handle firmly into the vulcanizer; then, if mending a tube, stand the vulcanizer vertically on a bench, running board or floor and remove the casing chain and bolts from the tube plate. When repairing a casing turn the swivel plate so that the projection with the round hole is on the same side of vulcanizer as the handle. Clamp the plate in this position so that it cannot revolve and insert one chain bolt through round hole and attach thumb nut. Then take the vulcanizer in the left hand, place the curved side against the repair, using waxed paper between the vulcanizer and the repair, bring the chain around the felloe and hook the other bolt into the forked projection on the other side of the plate and then screw the vulcanizer firmly but not too tightly on the tire.

After the vulcanizer is in position for action remove the cylindrical lamp and, holding it at an angle of about forty-five degrees, pour the fuel on to it from the brass measure. If you use alcohol get the correct amount by placing your finger over the lower hole and filling the measure until the fuel runs out of the upper hole.

Insert the lamp into the vulcanizer and ignite at the hole just above the lamp. The vulcanizer operates most satisfactorily, of course, if sheltered from drafts.

In exceptional cases, for instance, when vulcanizing a very deep casing cut or a tire that is at freezing temperature, a slightly additional amount of fuel, probably not over one-eighth inch, may be used to compensate for the extra heat required to bring the tire to normal temperature. But after a few operations your experience will make you the best judge as to quantity. On the other hand, when making several repairs in succession cool the vulcanizer after each one by immersing in water, and should the continued use of low grade fuel produce a sufficient deposit of soot in the vulcanizer to interfere with the draft clean the flue.

Whatever has been done to the tire, whether in the garage or on the road, it will be necessary after the job has been completed to inflate it once more, and do not fall into the habit of a vast number of motorists of simply blowing it up and letting it go at that. Careless guesswork concerning the right amount of air in a tire is the cause of many troubles. Too little air in a tire causes rim cutting, breaking of the side walls, fabric separation and ruin for any make of pneumatic tire. Too much air makes the riding rough and thus defeats the very purpose of the pneumatic tire. The tire should always "give" a little under a load, but mere inspection or guesswork is not a reliable inflation test. Carry a pressure gauge and when inflating do so to the indicated number of pounds, or else use a tire caliper, which gives you the correct inflation for any tire.

What would the crank shaft of an ordinary eight cylinder engine look like if all the cylinders were put in line? Is there any angle other than 180 degrees between the different crank pins?

The simplest way would be to have all the cranks in the same plane just like two four-cylinder crank shafts together. An arrangement with the cranks at ninety degrees would, however, be possible. The easiest way to explain it is to say that with eight cylinders in line you have the equivalent of two four-cylinder engines coupled together, and you can regard the first four cylinders as one engine and the second four as the other, or you can regard cylinders Nos. 1, 3, 5 and 7 as one four-cylinder engine and 2, 4, 6 and 8 as the other.

What is the best method of removing tar or tarvia from my car? I recently had to drive twice a day for two weeks over a road freshly covered with it. The chassis is absolutely covered and the body not much better.

Soap and water used promptly will generally remove tar or tarvia. It can also be softened by the application of butter or oleomargarine without damage to the varnish.

Another good solvent is cocoa butter, which is used in the theatrical profession for removing grease paint. This can be purchased in some drug stores and is a harmless solvent for all kinds of oil and grease as well as tar.

My car has always used too much cylinder oil. I recently had nonleaking packing rings applied, one in each piston, and a new set of rings applied, although the old ones were good and the cylinders are not worn a particle and the tool marks not defaced. I have tried various kinds of oil, but get no results. Can you suggest something that will prevent the oil from getting by the packing rings and fouling the spark plugs and the valves?

It is possible that the cylinders have been worn out of round or that the pistons are a bad fit in the cylinders. A good mechanic should be able to micrometer the pistons and cylinders and determine whether or not this is the trouble. If the cylinders are in good shape and the pistons are a sloppy fit the remedy is to fit oversize pistons. If the cylinders are scored to such an extent that the leakage you describe occurs the only remedy is reboring of the cylinders and fitting of new pistons.

Can you give me a list of things which might cause a knock in a motor?

Worn crank shaft bearnings, worn connecting rod bearings, worn wrist pin bearings, pistons loose in the cylinders, broken piston rings, preignition caused by carbon deposits in cylinder head, the spark advanced too far, too rich a mixture, scored cylinders or loose motor supports.

My car has poor compression on all but one cylinder when cold, but does not show so much difference when hot. I have had the head off and ground the valves. I think it is in the gasket joint, as the old gasket showed black carbon streaks, especially between the cylinders. It has not the power it should have and has run only 2,200 miles. Would it help to put in two gaskets and shellac all of their sides or is there anything else that will make it hold?

Since the old gasket shows carbon streaks it is quite likely that you are right in your surmise that the car is losing power due to leakage. The new gaskets well shellacked may remedy the trouble; also, go over the intake manifold connections very carefully and be sure that there are no air leaks around these.

Please advise me as to the use of naphthalin or naphthalene with flakes in gasoline for increasing mileage and as a carbon remover. It has been recommended to use a teaspoonful to every five gallons of gasoline, and I am told that this substance is put up under many names and sold for that purpose. Please advise me as to its quality, and how does it work?

The use of naphthalene or, as it is commonly known, camphor, is not recommended in gasoline. As a matter of fact it will deposit as much carbon as it will remove and will result in a sooted engine. A simple experiment which will readily show you the carbon forming tendencies of camphor may be performed by simply holding a camphor or moth ball over an open flame. The carbon will leave the camphor in long, stringlike formations.

I am having trouble with sticking valve stems on my car. Every 1,500 to 2,000 miles carbon has to be burned out, valves ground and valve stems cleaned and some of them straightened. I am using a high grade medium oil. The repair man says that the piston rings are not at fault. Would new valve stems be advisable? The car has been run 15,000 miles.

It would be advisable to try relieving the valve stems, making them one sixty-fourth of an inch smaller in diameter for a distance of one and one-fourth inches downward from underneath the head. This should give more room for any carbon accumulation and ought to prevent the valves from sticking.

It might possibly be advisable to try relieving two or three of the valves and see whether this makes those particular valves perform satisfactorily without relieving all the lot.

If you have to have carbon burned out every 1,500 to 2,000 miles it is difficult to believe that you are not getting too much oil into the cylinders. Some of the patented rings are very successful in reducing the amount of oil that reaches the cylinder head, and I think you would be well advised to try at least one patent ring on each piston.

I have a six cylinder car and when running idle No. 6 cylinder will not fire, but when given more throttle it runs smoothly if speeded up. There is the same compression in this cylinder as in the others. Can you tell me the trouble?

This probably is due to manifold trouble. If the motor is in sound condition throughout. The manifold may have acted satisfactorily with the gasoline secured at the time you bought the car, but with the present heavy grade the probabilities are that a good firing mixture is not obtained at idling speeds in the No. 6 cylinder. It is suggested, however, that before giving up the idea of remedying the trouble you remove the piston from No. 6 cylinder and examine it for sandholes, especially under the rings, and also examine the rings for bearing surface around their entire circumference.

But you can use the full speed of its powerful motor when you need it.

It has long 42-inch, easy riding, shock absorbing cantilever rear springs. In addition the 75 B Overland is a longer car—104-inch wheelbase. And it has 4-inch tires.

Its smoothness and ease of riding at any speed would do justice to a much larger and heavier car.

Come in and let us demonstrate. That's the best kind of proof.

EDDYVILLE.

Eddyville, Nov. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Davis and Mrs. Davis's lady friend motored here from Milton and spent Sunday with B. Ter Bush.

Judge Blake of the supreme court of Brooklyn stopped for a few days last week at Schuman's Hotel.

Mrs. Henry Raymer spent Thursday with Mrs. Thomas Anderson in Kingston.

Mrs. J. G. Reynolds, who is spending some time in Port Ewen, visited per mother, Mrs. E. Waye, one day this week.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Givens and little son have rented the house belonging to Mrs. Mary Lambert and are now occupying the same.

Mrs. Howard Van Aken, who has been the guest of Mrs. E. Van Tassel for the past week, has returned to her home in New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Schuman of Newark, N. J., are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. George Schuman.

Mrs. Marshall of Kerhonkson called on Mrs. C. H. Mauhard one day the early part of the week.

Mrs. Charles Beardslee spent Thursday in Kingston with Mrs. Mabel Elias.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carver of Ellenville motored to this place and spent Sunday with B. Ter Bush.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a baby boy at their home.

Mrs. Cornelia Worden of New York city is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Lambert.

Mrs. N. Bode called on friends in Kingston one day this week.

Mrs. Vincent Moore and daughter, Geraldine, spent Friday of last week with Mrs. Moore's grandmother, Mrs. E. Van Tassel.

Loans Without Interest.

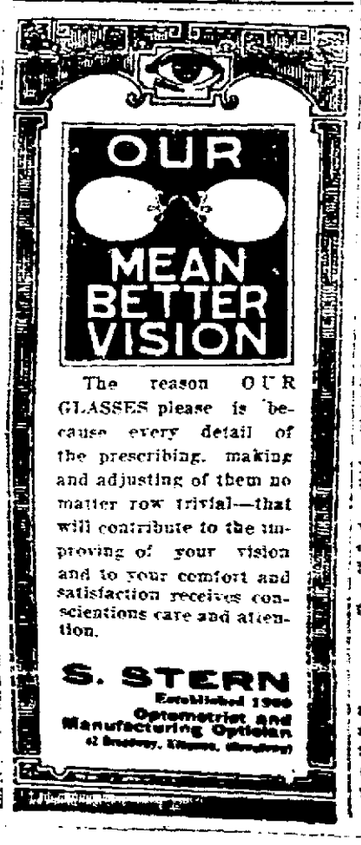
In the city of Barcelona, Spain, there is a peculiar pawnbroking establishment bearing the dainty name of "Our Lady of Hope," where loans are made without interest to necessitous persons on the deposit of any articles in pledge. Two-thirds of the value of the deposit is at once advanced, and the loan is made for six months and a day, but if at the expiration of that period the depositor should declare himself unable to redeem it after another period of six months the pledges are sold, but if they yield more than the amount advanced the difference is given to the original owner. This institution is very popular. Thousands are every year suitors for the favor thus afforded by "Our Lady of Hope."—Richard Ford, "Gatherings From Spain."

Useful Pet.

A soldier was grumbling about the scorpions, rattlers, and tarantulas that helped to enliven duty on the Mexican border, when a boy from Kansas ventured to say: "In Kansas my dad keeps a rattlesnake in the house as a pet. One time, he said, a burglar broke into the house, and that rattler coiled himself around the burglar and rattled out the window for a policeman."

Make Home Happy.

Whoever makes home seem to the young dearer and more happy, is a public benefactor. — Henry Ward Beecher.



The reason OUR GLASSES please is because every detail of the prescribing, making and adjusting of them no matter how trivial—that will contribute to the improving of your vision and to your comfort and satisfaction receives conscientious care and attention.

A Game of Twenty Questions

By F. A. MITCHEL

Traveling in a parlor car, I swung my chair around from the window through which I was looking, and my gaze fell upon a young woman whose face was partly turned toward me.

She looked up and bowed to me.

I returned the salute, so far as I was able, without betraying the fact that I had no more knowledge of her than of my grandmother, who had died before I was born. Rising from my seat, I walked toward her and said cordially:

"This is an agreeable surprise."

There was an amused look on her face as she made some commonplace remark. I judged that she did not believe I recognized her, but there was just enough uncertainty in her expression to tempt me to continue my pretense. A gentleman sitting in the next chair to her kindly offered to exchange seats with me. My offer I accepted, and sitting down beside my new found friend, I began to pour forth such words as would not give me away while I was racking my brain to place her.

It soon became apparent to me that she was aware of what I was trying to do, but she did not bring the matter to a head. Evidently she enjoyed my perplexity and was willing that I should have plenty of opportunity to remember her. In the course of our chat she said:

"When I saw you last you were single. Have you married since?"

"I am a bachelor. And you?"

"I am engaged."

A look of regret must have crossed my face, for she greeted the look with an amused smile. Glancing at the third finger of her left hand, where engagement rings are worn, I saw that it was bare. I looked up at her inquiringly.

"I should like to know why I do not wear a token of betrothal?" she said.

"I would."

"I will tell you before we part."

"Why not now?"

"Because it does not suit my pleasure to do so," she replied, with the same tantalizing smile.

It was so evident to me that she knew that I had no remembrance of her that I concluded to confess with a view to satisfying my curiosity.

"Come," I said, "you know very well that I am unable to recall who you are. Let us have an end of this fencing. Tell me when and where I have met you before."

She leaned back and chuckled.

"Have you ever played the game of twenty questions?" she asked.

"Many a time."

"Very well, I'll reply to twenty inquiries you may make as to where we were when we last saw each other."

I expended half a dozen questions in fixing the place of this last meeting in a summer house on the grounds of my father's country place. Then we began a new game as to the time of this meeting, and I learned that in eight questions. It was ten years agone. In another game for learning the lady's name I asked all the questions permitted without success.

I was no nearer what I wanted to know than before and was getting impatient, my condition being evidently simply delightful to my tormentor. I asked her what we were doing in the summer house, and she replied that she would give me twenty questions to find out. I got at this very easily.

"What was I doing?" was the first question.

"Holding my hand."

"What was I saying?"

"Telling me that you loved me and would always love me; that you would never forget me."

At this her mirth was excessive.

Memory now came in to do the rest. It carried me back to that summer house when I was a youth of seventeen. My companion there was then fifteen.

"I have at least been more true than you," I said. "I am still fancy free. You are engaged."

"Of course I am engaged. And now I will tell you why I don't wear an engagement ring."

I smiled a sickly smile. In the first place, I had then not possessed funds for a ring; in the second, I had forgotten my love before I could get the funds. A shadow must have crossed my face, for her mirth changed to sympathy.

"Don't worry about it," she said. "If all the things we do that we shouldn't do and all the things we don't do that we should do in youth came up to mock us when we are older we would be very much ashamed."

"Some of those things may be undone," I replied, "or at least may be repaired."

She understood me, for she cast down her eyes.

"I'm very much mortified about that engagement ring," I continued. "I had used up my allowance and was in debt for the next quarter. Better late than never. Wear this till I can get something appropriate."

I took a snake ring from my finger and made a motion to put it on hers. She drew away her hand, but I saw by her expression that the act was not prompted by her heart.

"When we last met, you say, I held your hand. Let us resume where we left off."

I did not take her hand—the place was too public—but, making sure no one was looking, I slipped the ring on her finger.

It was in time replaced by a solitaire.

Coffee and Nerves.

It is a fact beyond dispute that tea and coffee act on the nervous system and that they are dangerous if used too freely. A moderate use of either (or both) is probably harmless, if not made too strong.

ORIGINS OF GAMES.

Tennis Is Very Old and Comes From the Greeks and Romans.

Tennis is perhaps the oldest of modern games. It is said to have originated in the ball games of the Greeks and Romans. The racket was introduced during the fifteenth century in France, where the game was very popular, and imported into England about the same time.

Of the origin of cricket we know but little, though it was possibly identical with the club ball of the fourteenth century and was first called "handyn and handoute."

Bowling greens and alleys were once plentiful in London, and Henry VIII. made an alley at Whitehall. The earliest trace of the game appears in an old print of about six centuries ago.

Few perhaps know that London's famous thoroughfare, Pall Mall, derived its name from an old "Palle Melle" court which stood on the site 300 years ago. This game was a form of croquet.

Golf or "goff" seems to have made its first appearance in the handy hall of Elizabeth's reign, which was played with a club tipped with horn. Prince Henry, the son of James I., occasionally played at this game, which was very popular among the young noblemen of his day.

Football became such a rage with the London youths of the fourteenth century that a law was passed to prohibit it being played, as archery—then an important branch of education—was becoming thoroughly neglected.—London Mail.

CURIOUS TAXES.

Ways Holland Had of Raising Funds in the Old Days.

The archives of Holland contain ordinances which may well be regarded as curiosities of taxation. In the year 1666 there was a tax imposed on all passengers traveling in Holland by land or water. In 1791 this tax was still in force.

In 1674 a duty of 2½ pence was levied on each person who entered a tavern before noon. Those assembling in a private house after 3 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of amusing themselves had each to pay a certain sum, and those who entered a place of entertainment were likewise taxed. There was a duty on marriages and deaths. The amount of the tax varied according to the social position of the parties, while in the case of a person buried outside of the district in which he lived the amount payable by his executor was doubled.

But the most curious tax of all was one imposed in 1674 on boots and shoes. In order to prevent the impost from being evaded each of these articles so essential to human comfort had to be conspicuously marked on the upper leather with the stamp of the maker and also with that of the taxing officer. The sum to be paid was regulated by the size of the boot or shoe, so apart from the question of beauty in those days it was a real advantage to have a small foot. It saved expense.—London Mail.

"GOOD-BYE OLD PAL" ©INTL. FILM SERVICE

"QUICK, WATSON! THE AXE!"

Hark! From the cacti of Texas comes a doleful sound! It is Ben Ablen, the biggest turkey shipper in the country, telling the newspaper men that there is going to be a shortage of turkeys this year. Only 2,000,000 will be shipped north. "Farmers been making too much money with other crops," he says. "They've been too busy to raise turkeys."

Looks like beef stew for Thanksgiving dinner, if the beef trust doesn't raise the price of beef in the meantime. However, some of us may be lucky, like the woman in the picture, and have an "old friend" hanging around the place whom we are willing to sacrifice to our feelings of patriotism and lead to the headsman's block.

"HOLD YOUR TONGUE" ADVISES THE COURT

Mackey Family Troubles Draw Forth a Disquisition on Happiness and the Virtues of Reticence.

Incompatibility of temper shone brilliantly when habeas corpus proceedings taken by Catherine Donaldson Mackey against Edward Mackey were heard before Judge Hasbrouck at this morning's special term of the supreme court.

The Mackeys have been married for several years and have one child, a daughter, three years old. On October 31st, Mrs. Mackey procured a writ of habeas corpus requiring her husband to produce their child in court today. The Mackeys and the child were present. Mackey is a young man of considerable vigor and his wife is young and attractive. The child is handsome and cooed at both parents in the court room, unconscious that any ill feeling existed between them. Mackey at present is employed at Schenectady.

Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, who appeared for Mrs. Mackey, and Robert G. Groves, who appeared for Mackey, stated that by consent of the parties the proceeding was to be adjourned until the first Saturday in January and Mrs. Mackey in the meantime is to have custody of the child, Mackey agreeing to pay $3 a week for the child's support and to send all the clothes belonging to her.

"Ordinarily the mother has the custody of a child under six years old," said Judge Hasbrouck. "What seems to be the matter in this case, between such good looking young people?"

"What is to be done, judge, when the mother leaves the child?" asked Mackey.

"Is it a case of incompatibility of temper?" asked Judge Hasbrouck.

"On both sides, apparently," said Judge O'Reilly.

"But, judge," said Mackey, "you don't think a man ought to be painted as a rogue as she has done, do you?"

"Words do not hurt a man," said Judge Hasbrouck. "She has not called you a rogue, has she?"

"You ought to see what she calls me in these papers," answered Mackey.

"That is the legal phraseology used in legal papers of this kind," explained Judge Hasbrouck. "You ought not to be so sensitive about such matters or you will be very unhappy."

"Judge," said Mackey, "I've been unhappy for five years, and it's not a new experience for me. But finally she left me."

"No, I didn't leave him, judge," said Mrs. Mackey.

"I can't hear you at this time," said Judge Hasbrouck, after counsel had explained that a suit for separation was pending, "but if you want to try the case, all of you come in some day and I'll hear it. If you want to get along together again, come in and talk it over with me some day. I don't see why a perfectly good fellow like you, and a perfectly nice girl like you, shouldn't agree and get along together."

"That's what I'd like to know judge," said Mackey, "why can't we?"

"I was reading an old Greek writer the other night," mused Judge Hasbrouck, "who asks whether since the world began, there hath been one happy man, and concludes that to no man is given happiness. Now as a matter of fact, nobody's happy; we make a bluff at it, that's all."

"Well, I've been unhappy for five years, judge," said Mackey, "but I've put my foot down now. Now I'm fighting on principle, and the only way we'll talk this thing over will be when the suit is tried."

"It seems to me as if you've got too peppery a temper," said Judge Hasbrouck. "You are too anxious to talk back, too anxious to keep up a scrap. A man ought to be the hoisting horse of the family. Do you ever give your wife any money, ever buy her any candy? Ever take any flowers home to let your wife know what you think of her?"

"I did till she left me," answered Mackey. "But what would you rather see a man do—speak out or hold back his tongue when abuse is heaped on him?"

"It's a good plan to hold your tongue," said Judge Hasbrouck. "That's a good thing for every man and every woman to do. But as a matter of fact, every man has to take back talk. Don't you know that the philosophers of all ages have agreed that 'Silence is golden?'"

"All I want are my rights," insisted Mackey.

"You know what an old English writer has said," said Judge Hasbrouck. "He was a dramatist, and in one of his plays he makes one of the characters say:

"'Some womens has rights, but all womens has wrongs.'

"Do you get me?"

"I think I do," said Mackey.

WAR AT A GLANCE

Operations in Macedonia and in the Rumanian theatre of war took first rank today in the war news.

The terrific struggle of the Russian French, Italian and Servian troops for Monastir has reached the zenith of its fury. There are contradictions in the official dispatches on the battle of Monastir put out today by the German and French war offices.

Berlin claims that all the attacks south and east of Monastir were repulsed. Paris, on the other hand, claims progress for both the French and Servians. The Servians, it was said, captured 800 yards of German and Bulgarian trenches while the French have pressed nearer to the fortress from the south occupying the outskirts of Kanens.

Von Falkenhayn's Austro-German armies driving into Rumania from the north have made further progress and have repulsed a smash at the Teuton center. At some points the Austro-Germans are 20 miles in Rumania and have reached the edge of the Rumanian Plain. Over 6,000 square miles of Rumanian territory is now held by the Germanic allies.

Attacks were delivered by British, French and German troops last night in the Somme sector of the western front but there were no developments there of decisive importance.

Bible Class Outing.

On Friday evening forty members of the Men's Bible Class of the Fair Street Reformed Church were conveyed by automobiles to R. Trowbridge's Fairview Farm at Kyserike, where they held their monthly meeting and enjoyed a hot chicken supper served by four charming young ladies. The class was entertained by H. S. Woolsey and E. H. Burke. The singing by the class was unsurpassed and the solo rendered by C. E. Wonderly was greatly appreciated by all. Music by Miss Edna Markle, pianist and Walter DeGraff violinist was very pleasing. Mr. Woolsey acted as toastmaster and each member responded when called on. The talk given by the pastor, Rev. F. B. Seeley was very much enjoyed by all.

Assessment Case Adjourned.

In the certoriari proceedings brought by the New York Central Railroad Company against Morris Block, as assessor, to review the railroad company's assessment in this city, the matter was adjourned before Judge Hasbrouck this morning until the first Saturday in December, by which time the copy of such portions of the assessment roll as were required by Judge Hasbrouck to be furnished by the city to the railroad company will be completed. An order determining the papers to be printed was signed. Amos Van Etten appeared for the railroad company and Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier for the city.

More Railroad Legislation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Administration leaders here today were ready to turn to congress for further legislation for preventing another rarilway strike crisis. Careful consideration of the sparks of industrial fire that have been cropping out in various parts of the country brings the belief that a strike has not yet been averted. It is believed President Wilson will insist in December that congress pass his full anti-strike program submitted last session, of which the 8 hour law was a part.

Woodstock Boy a Thief.

Lawrence Morris of Woodstock, age 15, was committed to the State Industrial School at Industry, N. Y., by Justice Wallace Shultis for stealing a shot gun, carpenter's tools, fishing rod and other goods. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out by William F. Compton.

Ran Away From Asylum.

It has been reported that Severino Galli, 14 years, ran away from the orphan asylum at Port Jervis on Friday, and is thought to be headed toward Kingston. The boy was sent to the asylum from Esopus some time ago.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The regular meeting of the Atharhacton Club will be held at the home of Miss Van Hoevenberg on Wednesday afternoon next.

The United Social Club will hold a reception and dance at the hall, corner of Lincoln and Farrelly streets, on Thursday evening, November 23. B. J. Murray's orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for the occasion.

Mrs. Greenleaf of Highland avenue was the hostess at a delightful auction bridge party given at her home on Friday afternoon. There were five tables in play. Mrs. Charles R. O'Connor was the fortunate winner of the first prize, Mrs. Herzog received the second prize and the consolation prize was awarded to Mrs. Pehleman. After the games, delicious refreshments were served.

A well pleased assemblage danced to the strains of Maisenhelder's Tenth Regiment Orchestra at the state armory Friday evening. Director Mollot had the members of this newly organized orchestra of local musicians so well trained that every instrument harmonized to perfection. Not only did the orchestra send forth harmonizing music, but the time kept for the different dances surpassed that of any orcehstra which has played in the armory. The dance lovers in attendance were taken by surprise over the playing of the members, so good were the dance numbers rendered, that the dance committee of Company M engaged Maisenhelder for their Christmas night dance at the armory. They are also considering the matter of holding a dance between Thanksgiving and Christmas with the Tenth Regiment Orchestra as the attraction.

On Friday evening a complete surprise was tendered Miss Bessie E. Robinson at her home, 183 O'Neil street. The evening was spent in playing games while selection were played upon the Victrola and Miss Hele O'Conners played some selections at the piano and Miss Mary Hallinan rendered a few solos. At just 12 o'clock supper was served to twenty-five guests. Those present were: The Misses Mary Hallinan, Bessie Robinson, Helen O'Conners, Mary Murray, Susan Luffgen, May Finch, Nellie Elmendorf, Verna Winchell, Rose and Gladys Johnson, Stella McAuliffe, Mildred Robinson, Messrs.George Dempsey, James Kiernan, Bernard Rourke, Andrew Luffgen, Morton Finch, Francis Newmann, Raymond Boss, Peter Wenzel, William Duffy, John Sparling, Allen Pulver, James Dempsey, Albert Robinson. After voting the hostess a pleasant evening they departed for their homes.

One More D. A. R. Officer.

In reporting the election of officers of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., Friday evening's Freeman failed to include the office of Chapter Historian. Mrs. Weed was chosen to this office for the ensuing year.

Senior Dance Most Successful.

Friday evening, the Senior Class of '17 gave the most successful informal dance that the high school has seen in a long time. Everything was of the best, and the committee in charge, namely Miss Alice Scott and Arthur Warren, together with President Gleason deserve the highest praise for their work in bringing about such an unusual success. From a social standpoint the evening's fun was delightful. "Steve" Miller and his orchestra were at their best, and fiddled away the hours between eight and eleven all too quickly. A good floor and a congenial spirit among the dancers did much for the affair. While the punch vanished all too quickly and each dance with its several encores ended all too soon. The teachers, who were so kind as to give up the evening for the students' dance were Mrs. Witter, Misses Parker, Scott and Wilson and Mr. Burke. Moreover the ladies not only kept the necessary paternal watch over the young people, but joined in their pleasure as well. It is roughly estimated that the Seniors will realize nearly nineteen dollars from the dance and the class will be in order for congratulations on the all around success of the first enterprise they have undertaken since organizing.

DR HARRY GARFIELD.

GARFIELD TALKED OF FOR NEW WILSON CABINET.

Dr. Harry Garfield, President of Williams College and son of President Garfield, who is mentioned for a place in the new Wilson cabinet. He is one of many prominent men whom Washington gossip credits with being considered by President Wilson as possible successor for a number of present cabinet members whom it is said plan to resign before the president begins his new term.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Joseph Fautz has the contract to remodel the barbershop on Hasbrouck avenue formerly occupied by Patrick McDermott.

Friday a pane of glass fell from a window in the apartments over the Paris Millinery on Wall street, and lay on the window ledge. If it had fallen to the sidewalk pedestrians pasing might have been cut by falling glass.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Patrick Curtin of Catherine street was held on Friday morning on the arrival of the 11:55 West Shore train with interment in St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Curtin was killed on the railroad at St. Johnsville, Montgomery county.

Mary, infant daughter of Tony and Rose Sacreta, died at the family residence, 22 Willow street, on Friday. The funeral was held today.

John Shari died at the tuberculosis camp on Friday. The funeral will be held from the funeral chapel, No. 142 Broadway, on Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Amy Hotaling, wife of Edward Hotaling and daughter of John J. Davenport of The Trapps, died Saturday night at her home on the Samuel Jansen place near New Hurley. She was 36 years of age. The funeral was held at the chapel in The Trapps on Tuesday. The interment was there also. Rev. C. E. Lasher officiated.

John James Schoonmaker, who for more than half a century was one of the leading citizens in the town of Rochester in all public affairs died at his home at Accord on Friday in his eighty-third year. Mr. Schoonmaker was a descendant of one of the oldest families in Ulster county whose members have taken an active part in all public matters for generations, more particularly in the town of Rochester, where the progenitors of Mr. Schoonmaker settled many years ago. His father was Moses I. Schoonmaker who was prominent in town and county affairs during his lifetime. Mr. Schoonmaker succeeded his father in the proprietorship of the Accord Hotel, which he conducted for many years, selling out the business and retiring from business about ten years ago. The hotel was the scene of many political batties when political conventions were held there and Democratic politics in that section of the county were largely directed from the hotel, which was the conference place of many Democratic politicans. In 1865-66 Mr. Schoonmaker held the office of supervisor of the town of Rochester. Fraternally he was a member of the Odd Fellows. He was married to Melinda, daughter of the late Cornelius Schoonmaker, who survives him. He is also survived by one daughter, Miss Helen Schoonmaker; one son, John M. Schoonmaker and two sisters, Mrs. Alton B. Parker of Esopus and Mrs. Alfred Tanner of this city. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

THE JIONERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

The second degree will be conferred on Monday evening at the regular meeting of Rondout Lodge No. 343, F. & A. M.

At the regular meeting Thursday of the Higland Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, at 117 Broadway, it was found impossible to take advantage of the invitation extended by Charles DeWitt Council, J. O. U. A. M., of Kingston, to pay the latter a fraternal visit in honor of the fair the DeWitt Council is holding, which closes tonight. A particularly busy season owing to election are the reasons given by the Newburgh lodge for reluctantly declining the invitation. It was given out that a trip will be taken to Kingston, however, within two or three weeks.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

"Snowy" Baker, the Australian promoter, sent the following as an aftermath of the Les Darcy-George Chip fight in Sydney on September 30, which Darcy won with a knockout in the ninth round:

"Chip was in a bad way after being knocked out and his seconds had some trouble in bringing him to. Tom McMahon was pulling his hair and shaking his head, while Jimmy Dime was slapping his face and in other ways trying to resuscitate him.

"At last George came to with a jerk, and when Dime called to him he seemed as though he woke with a start, for he said:

"'Hello! What's wrong?'

"Dime smiled a sad grim smile and replied:

"'You've been knocked out.'

"Chip looked at Dime for a few seconds and then grinned:

"'Omit trying to kid me, Jimmy,' he said. 'How could I be knocked out when the fight doesn't begin until tonight?'

"Dime had quite a time convincing the stupefied Chip that he wasn't in his bed on the morning before the fight, but that he actually was on the floor of the ring in which Darcy had dealt out to him such a crushing defeat."

Higher Education?

Fullback Walker Jean of Heidelberg College (Ohio) played an entire game against Western Reserve (Ohio) with a broken rib.

A Pennsylvania player kicked a hole in the jaw of Captain Bob Peck of Pittsburgh. A doctor plugged it full of cotton and Peck finished the game.

A Yale player smashed Halfback Ruble, of the W. & J., in the nose, nearly breaking it off, but he stayed in.

Cofall, of Notre Dame, was tackled so hard by an army man that he was knocked unconscious. When he recovered he resumed play.

Berry, of Pennsylvania, crushed under the weight of the Penna State line, and bruised and bleeding, fought his mates who carried him from the field. He wanted to stay in the battle.

And so, ad infinitum.

Elephants, Too, Dan?

"Battling Levinsky has everything to make him popular. He is of a pleasing appearance and a gentleman all over, besides being the most marvelous boxer of the age. He is willing to meet anything that walks at any time and any place."—Dan Morgan.

'Twas Ever Thus in Golf.

"Jim used to play in 85, his game was fairly good—could putt, approach and cut the ball, was steady with his wood. Then Jim read all the golfers' books, absorbed each written line, and found his game was going bad, he played in 89. Kind friends essayed to help him ... instructed what to do, he followed all their kindly tips—and played in 92. And then he cut out theories—just practiced day by day—with different clubs a hitting—at the ball where e'er it lay. So Jim now finds an 80 is no trick to play at all if he practices plain hitting — just plain—Hitting at the ball."—Dan Webster in the November Golfers' Magazine.

Jess Willard Take Note.

John Bain Sutherland of Pitt, who ranks as one of the best football guards in America, never played the American game until two years ago. He is a Scot and went to the University of Pittsburgh for his schooling direct from his domicile over the sea.

Sutherland, by the way, is an all-around athlete and in his boxing prowess has influenced many enthusiastic fight promoters to urge him to become a professional heavyweight when he graduates. But Sutherland is going to be a dentist.

Two winters ago, Sutherland, who towers 6-1 and beams 190—entered a boxing tourning in McKeesport, Pa.—"just for fun." Pat Herron and Bob Peck, fellow footballers for the Panthers, went along to act as towel swingers and seconds.

When Peck and Herron saw Sutherland's opponent they begged the Pitt boy to "duck." The rival slugger weighed only 260 pounds, was several inches taller than Sutherland, had a tremendous reach and the reputation for being a great boxer and a "Kill-'em-dead" hitter.

Sutherland wouldn't beat it—so Peck and Herron did. They rushed out to get an ambulance and nurses and doctors and embalming fluid and a shroud for Sutherland. When they got back the fight was over—and a doctor was needed for Sutherland's foe. The Collegian hit the other fellow just once—and good night.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, Nov. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Troutman and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Minto from Jersey City visited Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ellsworth Sunday.

Miss Florence Terpening is spending her vacation at her home in Union Center.

Miss Anna Kniffin of West Park spent Saturday with Miss Ruth Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. George Van Sickle and daughter of Hurley are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. J. Sahler.

Miss A. Parsell of Kingston spent Thursday with Mrs. W. Schryver.

Miss Harriette Mosier spent a few days with friends in Kingston.

Miss Reta Cole, who has spent some time with Mrs. Charles Warren of Union Center, has returned to her home.

Mrs. O. Neher of Port Ewen is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. H. Winfield.

Fishy Weather Prophecy.

Dobbs Ferry, No. 18.—New York need not worry about a short coal supply because a big supply will not be needed. Fishermen have been catching shad in their nets in the Hudson the last few days, and they regard this as an infallible sign that this is to be an open winter. Shad usually go to the warm waters of the south in winter, but this year they are staying here, the fishermen say, exactly as they did in 1885, which had such mild weather that navigation on the Hudson was open all winter.

Recruiting.

English service will be held at the Spring Street German Lutheran Church tomorrow evening at 7:30. The subject of the sermon will be "Recruiting for the Master." At these services the full liturgy of the Lutheran Church is rendered. Come and worship with us.

Kingstonian Boilers

Has Any One Explained This Coal-Saving Point to You?

When you want to boil water quickly to poach an egg for breakfast, you don't put the water in a deep narrow-bottomed kettle. Not a bit of it. You get a big, broad-bottomed pan and put a little water in it and it boils almost while you are cracking the egg.

The Kingstonian Boiler acts just like that broad-bottomed pan does.

If you could pull out straight the flutes over the fire, you would have just twice as big a flat surface.

That's one reason why it heats quicker and with less coal than other boilers.

Because it saves coal, we sell it. Because it saves coal you should buy it.

Let's talk it over together.
